

Instructional Faculty – Multiple Positions – School of Nursing

James Madison University (JMU) invites applications for six 10-month full-time tenure track and rotating term appointment faculty positions focused in adult health/community health at the undergraduate or graduate levels starting August 25, 2021. We have a commitment to diversifying our faculty with these positions.

JMU is a comprehensive state university offering 76 undergraduate, 53 masters, and 8 doctoral programs to more than 20,000 students. Located in the scenic Shenandoah Valley, 2 hours from both Washington D.C. and Richmond, VA, JMU is recognized by the U.S. News and World Report as the most recommended public university in the U.S as well as the most innovative university in the South. The School of Nursing (SON) enjoys many collaborative opportunities for interprofessional and community partnerships locally, nationally, and internationally. For more information, visit <http://www.nursing.jmu.edu> and <https://www.facebook.com/JMUSON/>

The SON is housed in the College of Health and Behavioral Studies (CHBS). Our mission is to engage with communities locally, nationally, and globally through inclusive, dynamic and innovative nursing education, practice and scholarship to create health equity. In alignment with CHBS and JMU, the SON stands against injustice and systemic racism in all its forms. Therefore, we work to identify and dismantle any oppressive, racist, and discriminatory policies and practices. We are interested in candidates who have similar beliefs and values committed towards building equitable and inclusive environment. Consider joining us in achieving our goal of becoming a diverse school that embodies an environment of belonging. Teaching responsibilities for all positions include clinical, classroom, laboratory, simulation, and assignments in the undergraduate or graduate nursing program. Professional, school and university service, and scholarship are additional expectations.

Qualifications vary based on position. To view the full postings and apply, go to JobLink.jmu.edu and search keyword “nursing” or refer to Postings F1546, F 1547, and F1548.
